

QUESTION FOR PRIME MINISTER STEPHEN HARPER

The Nortel Disabled on behalf of 1.1 million Canadians with bogus disability insurance would like you to ask Prime Minister Stephen Harper, the following question when you get a chance.

Prime Minister Harper do you listen only to the fear mongering of the lawyers and lobbyists who tell you that protecting the disabled is a risk to the economy. There are just 360 Nortel disabled with 160 children whose assets have been taken from their trust account. In the economy, less than 1% of the workforce is disabled and disability insurance is less than 1.5% of payroll.

Do you honestly believe that changing a federal law to protect such a minority group of Canadians is going to hurt Canada`s economy?

Greg McAvoy with MS, Jackie Bodie with Parkinson`s and Josee with Scleroderma need to hear from Prime Minister Harper.

Prime Minister Harper Allows Powerful to Abuse Disabled

Nortel disabled employees asked Prime Minister Stephen Harper to correct an abuse by their employer who provided bogus disability insurance and wrongfully removed $75 million from their health and welfare trust. PM Harper stonewalled them for 18 months, turning down two disability bills using excuses supplied to his government by the insolvency lawyers, bankers and junk bond owners who took the disability insurance of the Nortel disabled. Bankers and bond owners insure their losses with credit default swaps and yet this government assists them to make a higher return by taking the insurance money of the disabled. This money does not rightfully belong to the creditors. Since disabled persons are less than 0.9% of the workforce and the cost of disability insurance is less than 1.5% of payroll, the impact of the bills on cost of credit is miniscule. The taxpayer now foots the bill for the PM's decision and the disabled live in poverty.

The Canadian disabled thank the Liberal Party Leader Michael Ignatieff for tabling the disability bills and NDP Leader Jack Layton, Bloc Quebecois Leader Gilles Duceppe and Green Leader Elizabeth May for supporting the bills.
